Miles and miles

stretching farther than the eye can see bewildering and challenging by their very range

To sophomore or graduate horizons are the same

unlimited—ever changing

With each passing mile memories recede farther into the past

opportunities unfold

Many pursuits now seem trivial

Many have earned rich rewards

That the student has pursued his personal horizons to the utmost of his ability—

only this is of importance

For now is the time to choose a star—to set a course

To the student who possesses a spirit of inquiry who is not satisfied with the half-done

who realizes that his opportunities are unlimited

To him belongs the greatest horizon of all—

the future

School Board Begins Public Forum Series

Seats were scarce as the round-table discussion on foreign languages was called to order by the school board. An overflow crowd listened intently to the comments and recommendations of the panelists and responded enthusiastically when an opportunity was given for questioning.

At another discussion in the newly-initiated series, a study of extracurricular activities was presented by a Task Group of citizens investigating this specific area. These meetings stimulated interest in the school program and kept the board informed on current community thinking.

Recent Plans Modify Arlington Education

Teachers rejoiced over a raise in salary; five-year olds looked forward to taking the first step on the road to education, kindergarten; and students at Wakefield hesitantly experienced with a seventh period. These were just some of the projects sponsored by Superintendent Ray E. Reid and his assistants for the Arlington County school system.

In charge of allotting the appropriations for the items of the 14 million dollar budget was Dr. Edward J. Braun. Administration, personnel, and instruction were the realms of Mr. Howard Bovee, Mr. Charles J. Walsh, and Dr. Joseph B. Johnson.

Intent on the game, Principal Benjamin Norris becomes an integral part of the anxious crowd on the sidelines.

Busy Schedules Face Administrative Staff

Mr. Benjamin T. Norris, principal, completed his third year as head of the school's administrative staff. Although his schedule at Washington-Lee was a busy and demanding one, Mr. Norris's duties called him as far away as Nashville, Tennessee, where he attended a conference of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Preparing the master schedule and compiling the budget were some of the responsibilities of Mr. Alexander Anderson, who was in charge of planning and coordinating the school activity program.

All college applications passed through the hands of Miss Mabel Allen, dean of girls, for final approval. Miss Allen also coordinated the substitute teacher program and planned College Night.

Being dean of boys required a great deal of attention from Mr. Harry Pitt, who also supervised the homeroom and health programs and conferred with the grade chairmen about class activities.

TO THE STUDENTS:

Throughout the world old guide lines are being erased—and out of this there are infinite new possibilities of a horizon growing broader. The new world opens before those of you with imagination and boldness—the boldness that has discovered the materials for victory when at the moment all seemed lost and the imagination that stimulated you to look beyond the present crises to a world that was waiting for you to enter.

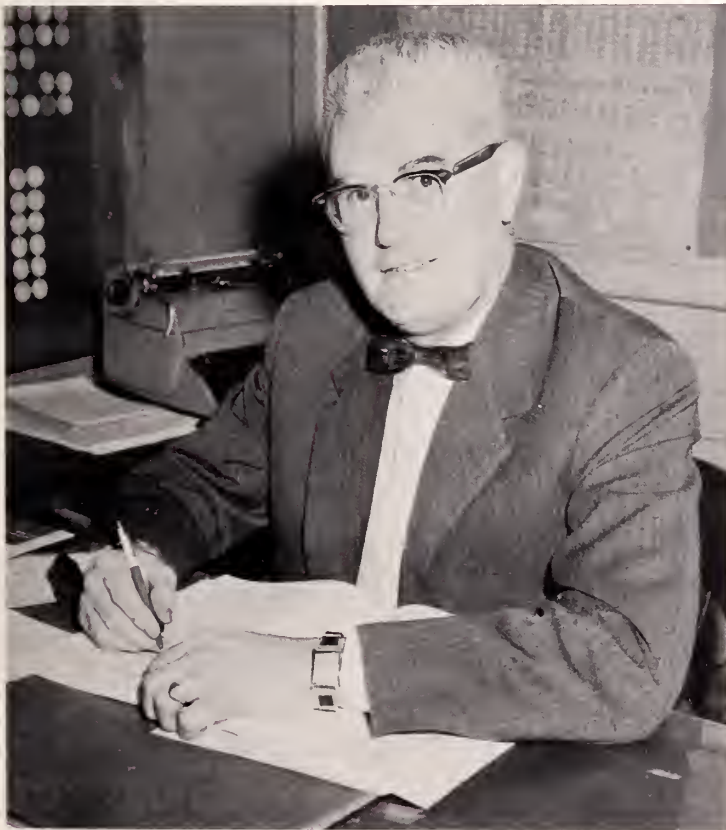

Living under the shadow of the dome of our nation's capital you are blessed with the world contacts, the conquest, and the scientific breakthroughs. Today's society is moving at a tremendous pace. Each year, each minute, it seems a new barrier has been pierced. As America's future citizens—you must rush forward, not blindly, but with courage and confidence in the possibilities of the new expanding horizons before you. Knowledge can be acquired; faith is born in you; courage comes from the two together. Equipped with these three—knowledge, faith, and courage—you should see the future as a time of inspiring challenge.

Organizational Shift Improves Efficiency

Typical of the ever-changing scene at Washington-Lee, several major shifts in organization took place in the office this year. Mrs. Ruth Watkins, registrar, moved to a separate office where she processed the college transcripts of many anxious seniors. Mrs. Grace Thomas, who, as well as being treasurer of the school, is in charge of the bookroom and supply department, left the central office and moved to room 116. The reason for these shifts in organization was to relieve overcrowding in the main office, thereby creating greater efficiency.

Seeing a need for improved methods in orienting new student assistants to their jobs, Mrs. Mildred Nixon prepared a pamphlet entitled, "You and Your Job as an Office Assistant."

Opens Wide Horizons College, Career Aid

Guiding students through their high school years and preparing them for new horizons to be met after graduation, the Guidance Department employed such functions as College Night and Career Week. Visits by representatives from colleges was another student-aid program arranged by guidance.

To improve the study habits of sophomores, the Guidance Department and the Speakers' Bureau sponsored a "How to Study" assembly.

With the help of Mrs. Gertrude Golla and Sue Gentry, a new sophomore, Eugene Rodgers, prepares his schedule.

Artists Create Mural Of Historic Scenes

Members of the advanced art class worked long hours after school in creating a colorful mural which decorated the Little Theatre this year and depicted the evolution of Washington-Lee.

Characters from such children's stories as Alice in Wonderland, Peter Pan, Beauty and the Beast, and Treasure Island appeared in murals painted for several Arlington County elementary schools by members of the advanced applied design class.

In the spring the department sponsored its second annual art show exhibiting works of students in the general art and applied design classes.

Steadying the scaffold, Mr. Leroy Anderson advises mural painters Carol Hollingsworth and Ken Johnson about colors.

Seniors Plan Ahead For Future Careers

Are you planning to go to college when you graduate, or do you want to begin a career as a businesswoman or a housewife? This year, senior girls who had not studied home economics previously, participated in a new course designed to prepare them for the future in whatever field they choose.

Intrigued pre-schoolers became part of W-L school life when the Nursery continued, in an enlarged form, as an integral section of home economics.

Mangoes and coconut milk, roast pig and papaya, poi and pineapple, all of the delicacies prepared for their Hawaiian

Automation Engulfs Business Department

Faster and faster clicked the typewriter keys as the controlled reader projected words at a quickening pace. New typewriters and electronic calculators surrounded business students in the classroom.

Combining shorthand and notetaking, a course in "Gregg Notehand" was considered by the department to be extremely valuable to college-bound students. Intermediate typing was offered for the first year to those who had previous typing experience but did not qualify for second-year typing.

W-L's savings bank saw its second anniversary with a total deposit by the students and faculty which exceeded all expectations. Student secretaries and tellers gained much banking experience and aided those who realize the value of the dollar.

Eighteen different firms employed thirty students participating in the Diversified Occupations program. Classroom theory combined with practical training at the business establishment provided to be invaluable preparation for the future.

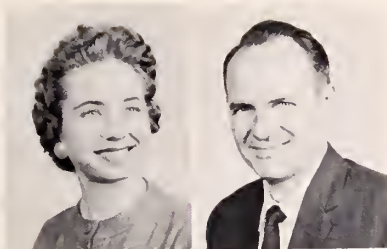

Under the supervision of Dr. Harold Whitman, Ellen Donovan constructs orthodontic braces for a patient.

Typewriters clatter as students of Mrs. Agnes Latham strive to achieve greater speed and better accuracy in their work.

Veu-Graph Innovates Teaching Techniques

Ever feel irritated by having to see through a teacher in order to find out what's on the board? Eliminating such ruffled feelings was the Veu-Graph, a modified opaque projector, introduced this year.

Revising former techniques of presenting grammar, the Veu-Graph prompted the method of teaching the function of a term before actually defining it.

Covering assigned beats, interviewing leading newspapermen, and writing, writing, writing taught journalism students the ins and outs of their field.

Equipped Laboratory Aids Language Study

Increased emphasis on the speaking and listening approach to French, Spanish, and German resulted from extensive use of a completely equipped modern language laboratory which provided facilities accommodating thirty students each period.

Utilizing the increased facilities of the department were more than nine-hundred students, with half of these choosing French. Spanish was next in popularity followed by Latin and German.

An interesting side light to this year's activities was a visit by a mobile laboratory featuring ten listening stations. Arlington was one of over four hundred school systems visited by the huge trailer on its high publicized cross-country tour.

Fascinated by modern teaching devices, Danny Barker listens as John Nuelsen operates the language laboratory tape recorder.

Standardized Tests Plague Gym Classes

"Tougher than the Russians," was the cry that urged many exhausted physical education students on to greater efforts as they went through the trials of skill and strength entailed in a "Marine Physical Fitness Test." Every boy's gym class took this test which is based on actual physical examinations taken by the United States Marine Corps.

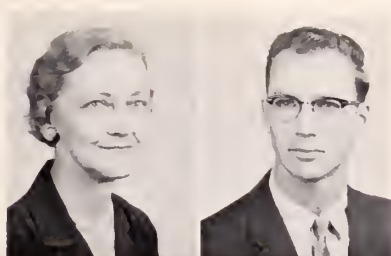

Mothers who volunteered to assist the school nurse checked the height, weight, and vision of underclassmen. Later in the year, the Health Department gave tuberculin tests to sophomores.

Safe driving was the theme for students enrolled in the driver training courses held each period by Mr. Glenn Causey and Mr. Roger Coggins.

Aiming for a distant mark, Marty Canada executes a broad jump during testing in Miss Barbara Reinwald's gym class.

Variety of Courses Include Boat Building

Build your own boat! Opportunities for the construction of many sizes and variations of buoyant vessels and surfboards were available to interested woodworking students through the boat building course offered this year. Other industrial arts projects included book ends, kindling boxes, printing techniques, mechanical drawing, and repairing student and faculty automobiles.

As Mr. Bruno Paras, Chairman of the Industrial Arts Department, explained, "The students' ability is the main factor in deciding what projects they undertake." Shop courses offered experience necessary for a job, or background for college study.

Great Books Series Adds to References

Classic writings of famous men were included in the Great Books collection, adding to the 16,000 other works contained in the library. Essays on topics ranging from philosophy to science provided an excellent source for research. Each subject was surveyed in a two-volume Syntopicon which also listed extensive reference material.

Tape recordings of Kennedy-Nixon political debates were made available to all interested social studies teachers. Assisting in presentation of audio-visual material at club meetings and college night were students trained by the librarians in the operation of many available machines.

Music Departments

Deliver Fall Festival

Through the combined talents of the three Arlington high schools, the biennial Music Festival was presented this fall. Mr. Thor Johnson from Northwestern University, Mr. Robert Fountain from Oberlin College, and Mr. Paul Bryan from Duke University were the Festival's guest conductors.

Year-round assemblies were given by the orchestra, choral, and band groups, with the traditional seasonal program highlighting the presentations.

Contemporary Math Gains New Emphasis

Cosines, curves, and coordinates puzzled aspiring mathematicians in the new Advanced Placement III class. Realizing the vital role of the science of numbers, the advanced students delved into the mysteries of analytical geometry and calculus.

Federal concern about mathematics and science prompted financing of solid geometry models to illustrate the 3-D principles of this subject.

Mental exertion was not restricted to students alone. Throughout the summer several members of the faculty learned of new developments in mathematics by participating in courses, many financed by National Science Foundation Scholarships.

Inquisitive Scientists Enjoy Modern Texts

Although vitamins, velocities, and valences may have caused confusion among more than a few future scientists, none could say it was due to outdated teaching materials. This year those enrolled in biology, chemistry, and physics enjoyed the use of some of the most modern equipment available.

A feature which pleased inquisitive students was the formation of a Science Club and a Forum which worked together to achieve deeper-than-classroom investigation of interesting topics through experiments, lectures, and movies.

Those who wished were able to explore the wonders of science and to express their findings through projects in local and national competition.

Presidential Contest

Interests Students

Buttons, hats, pamphlets, arguments across cafeteria tables, all the sights and sounds of an election year pervaded as November 8 drew near. A mock election was held on November 7 by the student council and the social studies department to enable the school to indicate their choice for the next president of the United States. Fifty-two per cent of the student body voted for Richard M. Nixon, while sixty-three per cent of the faculty supported John F. Kennedy.

Expanding interests in the field were the "I Speak for Democracy" contest, similar oratorical contests, field trips, an increase in visual aids, and the use of extra pamphlets and reference materials.

Gimmick Names Lure Teen-Age Appetites

Improving the students' eating habits was one of the chief goals of the cafeteria staff this year. Miss Frances LaBagh, cafeteria supervisor, employed eye-catching names to call students' attention to various nutritional dishes. "Rice, south of the border style," "the flying saucer," and "the submarine" are some.

A county-wide project set forth by Mrs. John Wilhelm, director of all Arlington secondary school cafeterias, was to include fresh fruit desserts.

Another recent development was the addition of ice cream to many plate lunches. This new system pleased the whole student body, since previously each person had to purchase his ice cream separately.

Also new this year was "The Nook," room 113, which was set aside to serve as a lunchroom for faculty members desiring a quiet retreat.

"Mmm . . ." declares Mr. Harry Pitt as he finishes lunch in "The Nook" which serves as the teachers' private eating room.

Service Pin Rewards Custodian McInturff

Completing twenty years of service in the Arlington School System, Mr. Donald McInturff, the Chief Custodian, received a gold pin in the fall. Aided by a staff of twenty-three people, working in two eight-hour shifts, Mr. McInturff carried out necessary jobs for a smooth running school.

In the fall two football games were frequently held in one week, which added to the responsibilities of the custodians in charge of athletic fields.

Many students failed to realize that between their dismissal in the afternoon, and arrival the following morning, several hundred people traveled the halls of the school. The custodians were kept busy every night caring for the fifty-five rooms that were occupied by the night school students.

Settling problems via the telephone, Chief Custodian Donald McInturff does clerical work in his office before school opens.

Lessened Enrollment Relieves Classrooms

As the school year opened, returning students found that classrooms and the cafeteria were much less crowded than before. This situation resulted from a cutdown in the school's enrollment to its smallest level in several years.

Anxiously waiting seniors learned of the approval of their proposed privileges during a late September assembly. The school board announced that the charter of the school chapter of the National Honor Society would be revised, thus changing a long-standing tradition.

Seniors Bobb Fickley, Jane Singer, and Carolyn Reid take time out to refresh themselves.

College Night Heads October's Events

Held in October and organized by the Guidance Department, Student Forum and P.T.A., College Night provided a chance for college bound students from Yorktown and W-L to learn more about colleges from the many representatives present.

Also in October were the Student Council's Leadership Training Conference, Sophomore Class elections and the Penman Kazance. The Kazance gave students an opportunity to dance in the halls, to hear poetry readings and to try abstract painting.

Newspapers and abstract designs provide a suitable backdrop for the non-descript fashions at the Penman dance.

Procrastination, a poor study habit, is demonstrated by Kathy Wright in the "How to Study" assembly.

"Popcorn, popcorn, get your hot popcorn," cries senior Jim Hollabaugh, busily preparing a box for hungry Judy Warden.

Mouths open -- shoulders exposed -- waistlines baggy! Both school clothes and formal attire appear at Kazance.

Senior Bob Warren demonstrates patience as well as photographic intensity for a snap.

Picnic Fills Auditorium Three Nights

"How's the old outboard motor?" exclaims George Nichols as he greets his college buddy, Bobb Fickley.

"I guess you don't love someone because he's perfect," asserts Madge, a leading character in the three night December production by Thespians of William Inge's Picnic. Set in a small Kansas town, the play centers on the problems of youth.

Picnic presents scenes of both tragedy and comedy. Underlying conflicts are many, with struggles by young and old to overcome the barriers of insensitivity, insecurity, and envy.

Cast of Picnic

Helen Potts .....	Sue Williams
Hal Carter .....	Robert Fickley
Millie Owens .....	Marsha Pettit
Bomber .....	Bob Callaway
Madge Owens .....	Jane Singer
Flo Owens .....	Becky Frazier
Rosemary Sidney .....	Kathy Ursin
Alan Seymour .....	George Nichols
Irma Kronkite .....	Mary Sanders
Christine Schoenwalder .....	Dorothy Ainsworth
Howard Bevans .....	Richard Stoops

"Look at the showoff!" comments Kathy Ursin to Richard Stoops as she sees Hal posing for Millie.

Becky Frazier looks anxiously on, as Jane Singer confesses that she feels out of place when she is with Allen and his friends.

Demonstrating his ability as a ventriloquist, Bob Berdeen and "friend" carry on a conversation at "Encore."

Interpreting the "Flower Drum Song" theme, Carolyn Bradshaw and Linda Harrison do a modern dance in the revue.

'Encore' Cast Traces Show "Biz" Memories

Reviews of the all time greats traced the development of show business from Vaudeville through modern entertainment in the production of "Encore," W-L's talent show. Arrayed as flappers in garments typical of the roaring "20's", cast members performed acts popular during the decade. The age of big bands followed by an era of big musical productions rounded out the show. Produced jointly by the student council and the Thespians, "Encore's" total proceeds went to the special AFS fund.

Angry at the antics of his cohorts, Ron Jenkins interrupts rendition of "The Great Pretender" to show this.

KAREN COUTSONIKAS PLACES VOTES IN THE MOCK ELECTION BALLOT BOX.

Pep Rally Anticipates Scalping of Warriors

Excitement reigned as the W-L squad prepared to meet the Warriors for the annual grid-iron duel. A pep rally featuring Wakefield's "star" player and a skit, during which the Generals scalped the Warriors, highlighted pre-game activities.

Conducting debates on the issues, government and history classes prepared students to vote intelligently in a mock presidential election. Posters and pins appeared around the school as W-Lites, caught by the election spirit, displayed their support of favorite parties and candidates.

It's massacre reversed; palefaces Wes Cocker and Roger Olson take care of redskin Jim Spicer during a pep assembly.

Reminded of fox hunts, students listen to Bramwall Smith's post horn accompanied by the Army band.

State champions, the football team enters the gym for a surprise assembly held to honor the heroes.

Pep Rally, Assembly,

"Hike!" yells Karen Kirkbride as the cheerleaders, imitating football players, demonstrate at the G.W. pep rally how to run a play.

Mimicking the cheerleaders, Key Club members arouse laughter as well as spirit at the rally.

Reverence spreads over students, faculty members, and guests at the traditional Thanksgiving assembly.

Bonfire, Game Accent Thanksgiving Fun

Football queen, Pat Bowman, admires her regal bouquet of roses as the co-captains and former queen look on.

With cheerleaders mimicking football players and Key Club members imitating cheerleaders, Thanksgiving activities began in a humorous vein. The assembly the next day brought reverence.

Burning a G.W. player in effigy that night climaxed the Beta bonfire on the eve of the traditional "Olde Oaken Bucket" game with G.W.

Pat Bowman was crowned 1960 football queen at the annual Turkey Hop after the team captured the "Bucket" for the fourth year in a row.

Seasonal Spirit Animates School Life

As the Choir, choruses and Madrigals prepared for the Candlelight Concert, homerooms added to the Christmas spirit by decorating doors for the Student Council contest and by filling baskets with food to be distributed to needy families.

Highlight of the holidays was the Alumni Dance sponsored by the Student Council. The dance was held at the Shoreham Hotel with music provided by the "Maryland Modernes," a sixteen piece band from the University of Maryland.

Mountains of food lie on the gym floor. Richard Belt and Mr. Cecil Nixon prepare to carry the baskets to trucks, which will distribute them to needy area families.

'Snow Days' Produce School Cancellations

Snow, which was to become a familiar sight in the coming months, occurred for the first time in December. Causing the cancellation of many after school activities, the snow also provided a chance to use two of the school's allotted "snow days."

Previous to the Christmas holidays, the Home Economics classes entertained the faculty with a tea. The girls had prepared refreshments, which they served during their class period.

In an effort to raise money for equipment, the crew team sponsored their winter crew dance, which was held at the Potomac Boat Club.

Mounds of remaining snow border shovelled paths used by W-Lites returning to classes after December's unexpected snow.

Exchangees Enjoy Manitowac Week

Student exchangees left for a week at Manitowac High School in Wisconsin. The highlight of the month for one hundred seniors, however, lay in the induction ceremonies of the National Honor Society. Climaxing January, the Omega Tri-Y sponsored a dance, proceeds going to the A.F.S. campaign.

Sandra Youngblood, daughter of the football coach, finishes the "Two bits" routine with the cheerleaders.

Enchanting music provided by "The Beachcombers" accompanies dancing during the Omega Tri-Y charity dance.

Exceptional Diversions Spark Cold February

New innovations in assemblies found their way into the school's activity program in February. Junior and senior boys attended an assembly designed to acquaint them with the R.O.T.C. program in colleges while girls viewed a fashion show presented by the home economics department.

Songs of the "Hi C's" filled the air as students were treated to a program presented by the Sea Chanters, a well known Navy choral group. Creaking bones were the order of the night as the "Wobly Warriors" of Wakefield challenged the "Faded Generals" in the annual faculty basketball game.

Spring Season Begins in March Whirl

March came in like a lion this year keeping W-Lites busy with many activities. The Junior-Senior game from which the seniors emerged as the victors ended a week of heated class rivalry.

Crowning Karen Kirkbride as Miss W-L and witnessing a fire in the balcony of the girls' gym, highlighted the evening for those who went to the Beta Charity Ball. The Beachcombers' Ball, in late March, had a more informal, peaceful atmosphere.

Student council elections closed the month as sophomores and juniors went to the polls to elect the leaders of the 1961 school government.

Ex-soviet Dr. Nicholas Gonscharoff speaks about "You and the Nation in a Changing World" in the Omega Hi-Y assembly.

Pre-game warmups for annual Junior-Senior bout attract spectator's attention as clowning senior Syd Welch drives in hard for a basket.

Enthusiastic W-L exchangees Paul Friedman, Henry Vaughn and Wes Cocker shout farewells as they leave for "Manty."

During the exchange skit, Bob Stoebe finds trouble with dairyman Wes Cocker after stepping in milk.

Proclaiming a toast of their visits, W-Lites and Mantys sip Cokes and become acquainted during the Mixer.

"Welcome Manty!" proclaim signs dotting the parking lot as an eager crowd of W-Lites cheerfully greet the Wisconsinites.

TIPPED HATS AND PACKED SUITCASES MARK THE END OF AN EXCITING WEEK IN MANITOWOC.

Band, Cheering W-Lites Greet 'Manty'

"They're here!" signaled the arrival of thirty-one exchange students from Manitowoc, Wisconsin. After being greeted by the marching band and a hoard of W-Lites, the exchanges went to meet their new families. During a special assembly, W-L's student body met the new arrivals and became more familiar with Manitowoc through a series of skits.

Busy every second of their stay, exchanges visited Washington, attended classes at Washington-Lee and kept pace with teenage social life.

"Which do you suggest?" inquires Mr. George Kanzelberger, a "Manty" sponsor of the trip, of a domestic exchangee during the tea.

"Off Moments" Vary Faculty Routines

Interrupting the many hours of academic routine are scenes of teachers and students during their "off moments." These are the experiences that give meaning and value to the knowledge of a classroom, that make days of the present interesting and the years of the past memorable.

"Hey, that tickles!" grins Mr. Harry Pitt as his wife ruffles the mustache he donned especially for Kazance.

Horizons Enlarge Through Activities

Far in advance, Junior Senators Martha Graves and Robert Nunn schedule the activities for their class.

Quickly getting into the student council routine, Senators Bill Petruzel and Jack Howard prepare to work for the sophomores.

Running off announcements, Senators Dan Plaine and Jim Fisher plan rosters for the senior class.

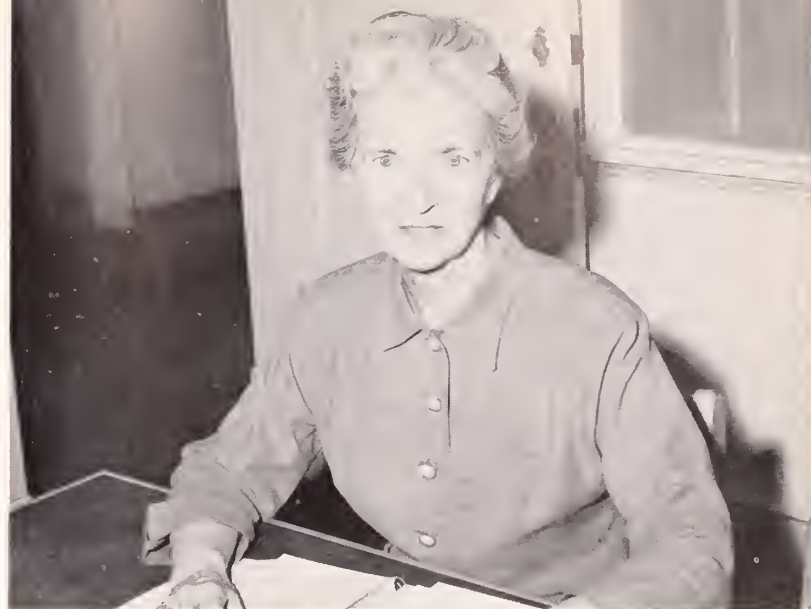

First Vice President Matt Harrison and Second Vice President Robert Bast review the forum agenda.

Council Staff Plans Constitution Revision

Student Co-operative Association officers worked throughout the year on revision of the school constitution and served as chairmen for the annual meeting of the student councils from the Northern Virginia area.

Two important committees of the student council were the honor code committee, which formulated a school honor code, and an election procedures committee, which revised the present system of nomination of student officers. During the spring, the council sponsored a variety show in cooperation with Thespians in order to raise money for the benefit of the American Field Service program.

Miss Jane Elliott, sponsor, reviews the council's appointment schedule prior to a Monday afternoon meeting.

Secretary Jane Durfee lists suggestions during an after school discussion of a proposed honor code plan.

Referring to the student council constitution, President Bill Breitweiser pauses before calling the meeting to order.

Preparing to enter his findings in the council's financial record, Treasurer Larry Shallcross counts Alumni Dance funds.

Vacate White House

Room 313 became the temporary center of operations for the Crossed Sabres staff during January and February when the White House received a fresh coat of paint and a remodeled interior.

An enlarged staff, aided by the largest number of journalism students in the schools' history, strove to gain the coveted All-American and Medalist ratings earned by last year's Crossed Sabres.

On Thanksgiving night, staff members and their parents sponsored the annual Turkey Hop during which the football queen was crowned. In June, staff members sold plastic covers for yearbooks.

Pausing before a bulletin board, Editor-in-Chief Adeena Jacklin checks over the latest issue of Crossed Sabres.

Turkey Hop plans take precedence over the back page upon which News Editors Jane Adams and Bobbi Lang work.

Designing the layout for a Crossed Sabres issue engages Betsy Drake, Diana Rushing, and Cathi Russell of the Feature Staff.

Business Managers Karen Valis and Karen Coutsonikas busily prepare to send issues of the paper to local business concerns.

Striving to eliminate all errors, Mrs. Pearl Hanson, sponsor, carefully reviews a recent Crossed Sabres.

"Deadline days aren't really so bad," laugh News Editors Roger Mason and Marty Cooper as they make front page corrections.

Seven o'clock Friday morning finds Jackie Eady and Susan Woodward, Circulation Staff, placing the Crossed Sabres in teachers' boxes.

SPORTS EDITORS RICHARD DOUD AND TOM NETTING PLAN THEIR LAYOUT FOR THIRD PAGE.

Toting the Word Finder, Mrs. Pearl Hanson displays the sweater given her by the Annual Staff.

Daydreaming of still another award winning annual, Editor Ruth Stockard pauses a minute from her demanding activities.

"Wait until next year," says Nanci Lenvin as she and junior staff members Kathy Kornet, Sherry Woods and Karen Campbell file pictures.

Contracts are checked by senior Sue Marston and Judy Hogue of the Advertising Staff as they prepare copy and pictures for the Ad section.

Three heads are better than one decide Copy Staff members Richard Stoops, Henry Felton, and Terry Williams as they discuss an article.

Approving the copy before publication is done by managing editor Bill Strackbein.

Staff Strives to Top 'Medalist' Score

Giving long hours after school and on Saturdays, staff members worked to top last year's Medalist award-winning annual which received 994 points out of 1000 in the Columbia Press competition.

Selling the yearbook was easier than writing it agreed most Blue and Gray members as they reviewed the sales. Eighty per cent of W-L's twenty-one hundred students purchased the annual.

Informal photographs of school life are scheduled far in advance by picture editor Ellen McChesney.

Layouts completed, Dianne Cromwell, editor of this section, rechecks picture sizes before the arrival of the printer.

Checking circulation figures, Joanne Heath computes total sales of the Blue and Gray in the Senior Class. Buddy Tyler compares the number of annuals purchased by Juniors.

Negatives are reviewed by Bob Templeman and Bob Berdeen while John Bagwell waits for his next assignment. All three photograph and develop the pictures used in the Blue and Gray.

Rough copy turns to finished at hands of typists Martha Ludwig and Mary Anne Burke.

Senior Jan McClosky, bookkeeper for Blue and Gray, mails receipts for advertising.

Responsibility for handling the business affairs lies with the Business staff composed of Janet Webster, assistant business manager; Marsha Pettit, business manager; Linda Watten, advertising manager; and Janie Carper, bookkeeper.

'After Dance' Provides Games' Climax

Although the preparation of three issues of a literary magazine was the chief responsibility of the Penman staff, such activities as selling popcorn at football games, organizing a "non-objective Kazance" and holding three "after-dances" following basketball games also required much time and attention from the magazine's editors.

During the second semester, Mrs. Pat Grafton, sponsor, Kathy Ursin, editor-in-chief, and Judy Warden, short story editor, attended the Southern Interscholastic Press Association's annual conference in Lexington, Virginia to obtain new ideas.

Prospective Penman entries draw the attention of fiction editors Joan Zurich, Linda Huf, and Kathy Wright.

Scratchboard drawings pass before the selective eyes of Art Editor Sue Sunda and her assistant Diane Ewers.

Poetry Editor Gail Singer submits proofs for Penman sponsor Mrs. Pat Grafton as Associate Editor Judy Warden files.

Checking additions to the Student Directory occupies staff members Kathleen Ursin and Judy Warden.

Editor-in-Chief Kathy Ursin examines an impressionistic sketch in the winter issue of Penman.

Enthusiasm Reigns As Singers Perform

Proving music to be an international language, the Madrigals sang their entire repertoire plus encores for an enthusiastic audience of foreigners visiting the International Club in Washington.

March saw the thirteen-member group appear on the national television series, "An Age of Kings." Songs of English ancestry provided an appropriate background for the historical Shakespearean plays.

Varied madrigals, including "O Eyes of My Beloved," were performed at the Civitan Club, conventions, and churches in the area.

In his capacity as president, senior Dave Culbert prepares to lead the well-known Madrigals in the singing of a favorite song.

Choir Participates in Yuletide Concert

Strains of "O Magnum Mysterium" filled the Washington Cathedral as choir members demonstrated their talent for religious music.

Exhibiting excellence in many types of songs, the choir participated in the county-wide music festival and highlighted Christmas with the Candlelight Service which featured "A Christmas Cantata" with orchestral accompaniment.

To stimulate interest in an active music program, the choir sang several numbers for students of newly-built Yorktown High School.

Making sure all choir members are aware of the week's schedule is one of the many responsibilities of president Jeff Phillips.

Student Directs Religious Selections

Little Falls United Presbyterian Church was only one of the Arlington churches visited by the Girls' Choir. Religious numbers led by a student director included selections from "The Occasional Oratorio," a composition by Handel.

Emphasizing variety, the choir sang selections ranging from Latin hymns of the early Church to modern arrangements by the composer in residence, Miss Emma Lou Diemer. Folksongs figured prominently in the repertoire of the choir, such as the sea chanty, "Can't You Dance the Polka?"

During the Candelight Service, the Yuletide spirit was captured by the choir as they sang the "Shepherds' Christmas Song," an Austrian composition by Dickinson, which also featured a flute accompaniment played by Peter Culbert.

Presidents of the Girls' Choir, Suzy Iliff and Andrea Watkins, study the music scores in preparation for the coming concert.

Junior High Trips

Selections by the sixty-member Chorus were an integral part of concert and assembly programs. Various sacred and secular numbers were sung at the County Music Festival, the Candlelight Service, and the Spring Concert in April.

Always striving for perfection Mr. Robert Baxter, director of the Mixed Chorus leads a song during rehearsal.

Snowstorm Strands State Band Rehearsal

Making preparation for their March 3 program, the Concert Band worked during class and at night rehearsals to perfect their performance of a piece of contemporary music entitled Land of Wheat. The song, which was composed by Don Gillis, contained six parts. This was the first public presentation of Land of Wheat in this part of the country.

Previous to the Band Concert, several members of the band were trapped at Fairfax High School, when a snowstorm hit during a rehearsal of the State Band. Forced to stay overnight, the group received sleeping bags from Ft. Myer, and the school cafeteria staff stayed over to serve them breakfast. Later the next day the students were able to return home.

Prior to a rehearsal of the Concert Band, senior Carl Erickson distributes music for other band members.

Band president Carl Comley takes time out from his trumpet practice as he prepares for a future program of the band.

Majorettes Acquire Special W-L Letters

At meetings, held once a week, the Marching Band prepared for their traditional performances at pep rallies and football games. These meetings also prepared them for the dedication parade of the Arlington branch of the Young Men's Christian Association. In this, as in other performances, the Band worked with the Majorettes.

Special W-L letters, created for Majorettes, were presented at the Sport's Banquet, which was held December 17. The letters, which were decorated with a baton indicating how they were earned, were awarded to all of this year's Majorettes.

Director William Pfeiffer gives the Marching Band last minute instructions as they prepare to leave for their first parade.

MAJORETTES — Kneeling: Ann Kendall, Anne Pierce,

Betty Austin. Standing: Beverly Hickman, Pat Green, Lois Rucker, Sharon Sauls, Judy Fisher.

At one of their Thursday afternoon meetings, the majorettes and marching band hold a drill to learn formations for a game.

Extra Shows Crowd Performer's Schedule

With appearances in the County Music Festival, the Thanksgiving and Christmas assemblies and the State String Convention completed, the Orchestra prepared for a series of spring performances. Programs included the Choir Concert, the Orchestra and Easter assemblies, two junior high concerts, an orientation program and their own Spring Concert.

Added to this already crowded schedule was the Vesper Concert delayed by eight inches of snow which fell on the day of the performance.

BASS VIOLS — Front Row: Alan Anderson, Clara Ellis,

Elos Incites Interest in Seldom-Used Hymn

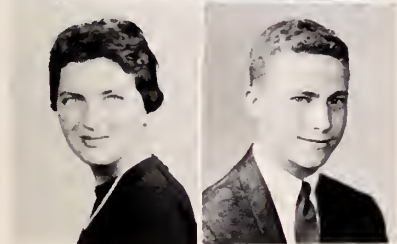

In an effort to increase school spirit, Elos, the honor society for artistic endeavor, attempted to renew interest in the seldom used school hymn by encouraging students to learn the words and by urging that it be sung at all assemblies.

To gain money for a $100 scholarship, which was given to an outstanding senior at commencement, Elos sold refreshments at the three performances of Picnic and other school activities.

Candy Sale Renders Funds to Buy Books

"Parlez-vous francais?" . . . "Oui!"

This was the pass-word for students who wished to sit at the French Honor Society's lunch table. During the entire lunch period, students sitting at the table agreed to speak only French.

Early in the year, Honor Society members sponsored a candy sale. The proceeds from the sale were used to purchase books written in French. These were placed in the library for the use of students wishing to do reading outside of class in French.

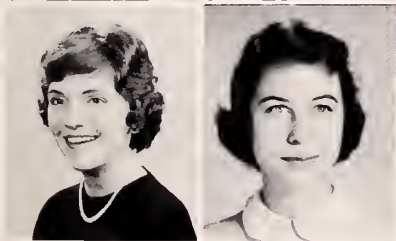

Attracted by the honor society's table, Sue Black, Judy Foster and John Sonen talk in French of latest events.

Spaniards Enjoy Restaurant, Theatre

Members of the Spanish Honor Society enjoyed a year of activities predominated by such events as an evening in a Spanish restaurant, a trip to the theater to see Los Pantalones, and a visit to a performance of Carlos Montoya, a famous guitarist.

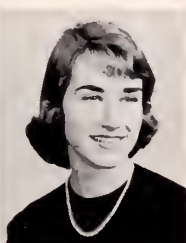

Programs of the society's meetings, which were all held in Spanish, included a talk by Lucia Ospina on her native country, Colombia, and a description of Costa Rica by Hilda and Julieta Ugalde, who recently moved from Central America.

During the holidays, members and alumni attended a Christmas party held by the society and enjoyed an atmosphere pervaded by Spanish music.

Changing from an inactive society for seniors upon graduation, the Washington-Lee chapter of the National Honor Society became an active organization which included underclassmen as well as seniors.

Scholastic requirements for sophomores and juniors were very rigid, creating a highly selective body of students whose aim was to increase the academic endeavors in other students.

Early in the school year, Speakers' Bureau voted to buy tapes to record textbooks for blind students. Members with suitable voices were selected to make the recordings. The readers alternated until they finished a book and the tapes were then given to the Fall Church library for distribution.

Bureau members publicizing educational T.V. spoke to various civic organizations to raise funds for a station in this area. Members also wrote and presented a skit in the Sophomore "How to Study" assembly. Other activities included broadcasting at athletic events and making P.A. announcements.

Lecturer Describes Satellite Research

Is it possible to create harmony between the worlds of science and religion? Many divergent opinions were presented on this controversial subject by members at a monthly meeting of Tikos, the Mathematics Honor Society.

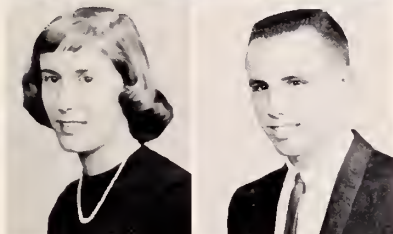

A presentation describing mathematics research revealed the extensive training required to enter this abstract field of study. The necessity of higher mathematics was evidenced in a report on the composition of the sun's corona, recent developments in astrophysics, and the instrumentation of satellites used in space research about the sun.

Cheerful Scrapbooks Amuse Sick Children

Colorful pictures of animals and scenery were collected and assembled into interesting scrapbooks by the girls of Alpha Tri-Hi-Y. These scrapbooks were then presented to Arlington Hospital, where they served to amuse sick children.

Other Alpha projects were a party for new members to serve as an initiation and welcome and a Thanksgiving food basket given to a needy family. Talks by the exchange students highlighted the program meetings, held once a month.

Election Stir Accompanies Convention

Lollipops and confetti, chants and streamers, marked the site of the Beta convention in Richmond on March 17-18. The W-L Beta Club, one of the largest chapters in Virginia, nominated junior Carolyn Ryffel for state vice-president. Chaperoning W-Lites at the convention were sponsors Miss Freda Guinn and Miss Florence Hickerson.

The state convention was only one of the events for Beta members who spent the year serving school and community: the school by running the Attendance Office and the Lost and Found, by polishing trophies, and by sponsoring the George Washington Bonfire; the community by working on the Chamber of Commerce, and the Heart, Cancer, and Tuberculosis Committees.

W-L C.A.R. Renders Prexie for Convention

Powdered wigs, authentic costumes, and harpsichord music was the setting for a January meeting of the Children of the American Revolution during which a member read letters written by Martha Washington. Other activities for the year included a study of Abraham Lincoln, a lecture on the depletion of the natural resources in America, and a pilgrimage to the historic Glebe House. During the state convention held on January 25-27, Washington-Lee alumnus Ben Rucker, a member of the chapter, was elected state president of the C.A.R.

Areas Top Speakers Contest Role of U.N.

Presenting the pros and cons of controversial issues related to the role of the United Nations in preserving world peace, members of the debate matched their skills against teams from other Virginia schools throughout the year. In an early season tournament, at which the team took the overall second place title, Tom Scott and Hugh Heelo won the negative section award and were rated the two best speakers during the whole tournament.

Members of the team also attended the George Washington University discussion conference and the University of Virginia Conference. During the latter, Alex Clain was presented with one of the top four awards given at the session.

Unique Dance Charges Penny-an-Inch

"A penny for each inch in your waistline" was the cost of admission to Delta Tri-Hi-Y's Waistline Dance which was held in late winter. It was the intention of Delta's officers that this unique dance take its place as one of the schools many traditions.

During the Christmas holidays, members volunteered their services to the Tuberculosis association by selling stamps and articles made by T.B. patients.

Visiting during many of their meetings were local ministers who talked on topics of current interest including summaries of different religions.

Program Trains Xmas Job Applicants

To help students obtain Christmas jobs, the Diversified Education Club sponsored an after school training program. Ending the week's course, those who had successfully completed it received certificates from Hecht Company Manager, Louis Etelson.

Following the job training program, the club began preparations for the Valentine Ball. Home-rooms nominated and then chose a King and Queen to reign over the Ball. Proceeds from the dance were used for the group's trip to the New York markets.

Year's Work Aids Club at Convention

Knowledge gained throughout the year prepared Diversified Occupations Club members for the March 11 district convention at W-L. Clubs from schools as far away as Fredericksburg, Virginia participated in contests, designed to represent the program, at the meeting of the D.O. Clubs of Virginia in Richmond. Divisions of the competition included essay writing, job interviews, posters and speeches. A highlight of the three day State Convention was the dance held on Saturday night.

Climaxing the year for the D.O. Club was the Employer-Employee Banquet. This annual event was held in May, and each of the club's members brought his employer or supervisor to the dinner.

County Schools Host Destined Instructors

Spending an entire day observing teachers and teaching techniques in the Arlington Elementary school highlighted the year for members of the Future Teachers of America Club. After visiting a classroom to get a view of the profession, each had an opportunity to ask questions.

At an afternoon meeting, assistant principal Alexander Anderson, who recently traveled in Europe, spoke to the club and showed slides which he took while abroad. During the month of April, another faculty member, Miss Mabel Allen, informed the group about colleges and scholarships which aided them in planning a career in their own field of interest, that of education.

Turkey Day Float Seizes Blue Ribbon

Gamma member Mary Gibson hands her president Suzy Iliff the proceeds from selling football programs.

"But my square isn't quite square!" These words frequently echoed the sentiments of Gamma Tri-Hi-Y members who were knitting the traditional afghan. In addition to this project, Gamma girls worked for the TB Association, made favors and scrapbooks for hospitals, and helped collect food for the needy at the Thanksgiving season.

One of the club's proudest achievements was the first prize ribbon won by their float at the Beta Bonfire during the Thanksgiving festivities.

Social events, such as slumber parties, the initiation, bowling, and a Mothers' Day Tea, filled out the rest of Gamma's active year.

Latin Banquet Features 'Roman' Food

This year's activities were highlighted by the Latin Banquet. Members of the Junior Classical League donned their togas for a traditional Roman dinner which featured food typical of that served in ancient Rome. J.C.L. members received a further taste of the ancient culture when they participated in games common to the Roman Empire.

Curious Dogs Invoke Hall Monitors Chase

"Here boy, be a good doggie, come on fella—that's a good dog." Lost dogs often prompted these coaxing words from hall monitors as they tried to persuade Towser and Fido that they really wouldn't be interested in attending classes.

In addition to advising canines, hall monitors also helped humans in the form of stray students and parents. Occasional mishaps occurred—a hall pass was demanded of a teacher and a detective was questioned. However, when the bells could not be operated, the monitors responded by ringing them by hand so that the school day could proceed.

Instead of chasing stray dogs, Jim Wilson, senior, finds himself doing some last minute homework at his hall monitor post.

Highlight Year's Activity of Key Club

"Largest group in the area," was the proud distinction of the Washington-Lee chapter of the Key Club this year. Working in conjunction with the local Kiwanis Club, the club sponsored a school-wide food drive at Christmas. The food was distributed to needy families in the community.

During a November meeting, a policeman spoke to the boys about the importance of safe driving techniques and obeying traffic signs. The lecture made such an impression that the club took on as a project distributing and posting safe driving signs.

Boys from other chapters in the area joined with Washington-Lee's for the first annual "Field Day Event" held at the school's stadium on April 8. The purpose of the meet was to interest boys in participating in various outdoor track activities.

At the end of the year, Key Club members selected the most outstanding senior boy who received due honor at the final Awards Assembly.

Keyette Club Votes Orphan's Sponsorship

Starting a new project this year, the Keyette Club sponsored an overseas orphan through an organization in Richmond. By donating ten dollars a month, support of the child was assured.

Carrying out their motto "We Serve," Keyettes joined the Tri-Hi-Y's in activities such as serving refreshments at Back to School Night and College Night. Members also aided in the campaigns against muscular dystrophy, and careless drivers and pedestrians. Helping the United Brethern Church, the club also carried out a clothing drive.

"... and with you, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, the defense rests its case," said a student defense attorney during the Law Club's mock trial in which every attempt was made to follow actual courtroom procedures.

Meetings of the club, the first of its kind at W-L, included a guest speaker on the subject of naval law, a visit by County Attorney William J. Hassen, who spoke on local political law, and a talk by a representative of the Federal Trade Commission.

Late Work Produces Scenery For Play

One of the school's newest organizations, the Lively Arts Guild, was formed as an apprentice club for Thespian pledges. In co-operation with Thespians and the Student Council, the guild produced the spring talent show featuring students from all three classes. Members of the guild worked after school and on weekends to prepare scenery and arrange lighting for the fall play, Picnic.

Storybook Figures Come Alive at Tea

Little Red Riding Hood, Tom Sawyer, and Huck Finn were among the fictional characters serving refreshments at the faculty tea during Book

Week. In discussions with foreign students, club members learned of libraries and literature in other countries. With such information, the trip to the Library of Congress proved especially interesting.

Audio Crew Rebuilds Antiquated Equipment

Attempting to remedy the poor sound quality of the public address system in the gymnasium, the Sound Service Club conducted necessary experiments to determine which equipment would give the most satisfactory performance, with special attention given to acoustics in the balconies.

After ordering the required equipment for the gym, the club improved existing speakers by housing them in cabinets constructed from discarded record player cases. The resulting units, in addition to being portable, had ample storage space for connecting cable. Sound Service members also provided address systems for all assemblies and athletic events, the G. W. bonfire, and the Turkey Hop.

Enthusiastic Horsemen Compete for Trophy

Competition was high as each member of the Mounted Generals vied for the club trophy in horsemanship during their April horse show. If won by the same individual for three years, the trophy was retired by that person. Entries in the open jumping division proved exciting as each entrant strove for the winning height.

Under the guidance of more experienced members, novice horsemen became proficient in handling their animals. Trips by the club to the International Horse Show at the D.C. Armory and to a horse breeding farm proved especially interesting to the group. Other activities included hayrides, picnics, and even fox hunting by some of the members.

Mathematicians Hear Interesting Lectures

"... and if that is true, then it follows that  $x$  is a member of the null set," explained a member of the Math Club during one of their bi-monthly meetings.

Those interested in some of the more challenging aspects of mathematics found the Math Club well suited to their needs, for at meetings, lectures could be heard dealing with such topics as permutations combinations, symbolic logic, and boulian algebra, as well as games, puzzles, and a demonstration of the mathematics of chance and gambling.

New Society Honors Outstanding Speakers

Receiving its charter in April of last year, the school chapter of the National Forensic League became Washington-Lee's first organization to honor those excelling in speech and debate activities.

Under the sponsorship of Colonel Carl Brose, the local group, Virginia's first high school chapter, encouraged, promoted, and participated in school-wide forensic contests.

During the late spring the local chapter organized and supervised an invitational speech and debate tournament for area schools.

Reviewing the agenda for a meeting, members Alex Clain and Tom Dolle note plans for the debate tournament.

Charity Dance Earnings Add to A.F.S.

W-Lites helped support the American Field Service Exchange program by attending the Omega Hi-Y charity dance in January. The club donated thirty-five dollars to the A. F. S. fund.

Omega members reserved the parking lots and directed the cars on Career Night so that interested parents, students, teachers, and visiting dignitaries would have convenient parking space.

Other projects included playing a basketball game with the Key Club and sponsoring an educational assembly on Russia. This assembly featured an expert on Russian affairs and a panel discussion.

Decorative Works Supplement Dance

Members of the Penman Art Club worked with the staff of the Penman in planning and decorating for the school's first "non-objective" dance, the Kazance, which owed much of its "beatnik" atmosphere to numerous examples of club members artistic and decorative skills.

Planned by the group, the Penman Art Show also displayed the artistic talents of club members. Various school activities received publicity in the form of posters created by the club. Members enjoyed guest speakers as well as movies on art subjects at their regular meetings.

Emergency Crew Takes Top Honors

Competing against adult professional teams, a four member team of the Washington-Lee Rescue Squad placed among the top contestants at the International Rescue and First-Aid Convention.

Functioning as administrators of emergency first aid, squad members attended all home athletic events. The team's duties also included a nightly vigil over the short-wave radio receiver of David Wehrly. Whenever there was a call for emergency first-aid, one or two squad members would report to the scene.

Opportunity to Save Intrigues Economists

Open before school, during homeroom, and first period, the school bank started its second year of operation in September. In two years of activity, over three hundred students took advantage of the opportunity to save; deposits totalled over $54,000 with dividends of more than $800.

Operating the bank were students who have had business courses in either typing or bookkeeping. These students were in charge of recording all of the deposits and figuring the dividends to be paid. Although a working amount is kept at school, large amounts of money must be transferred to First Federal, the sponsor bank.

Radio Hams Operate Short Wave Station

Putting technical knowledge into use, members of the Tranceiver's Club assembled a short wave radio station. Upon the completion of the station, they prepared for the licensing exam, given by the Federal Communications Commission, by a further study of radio theory and Morse code.

Operated under the call letters W4BGA the amateur station communicated with ham stations in North and South America and Europe.

Service Group Joins School Organizations

An affiliate of the Young Women's Christian Association, Y-Teens was formerly a part of the County-wide Arlingteens. The club's first project, finding a faculty sponsor, was successfully ended with the cooperation of Miss Elizabeth Dalton.

Meetings of the club featured speakers on a variety of subjects aimed to better equip Y-Teen members for fulfilling the club's objectives—service to school and community.

RCA Recording Artists Perform at Meeting

"Joshua Fit de Battle of Jericho" was only one of several spirituals sung by two RCA recording artists attending a weekly meeting of the club. One of the singers, an evangelist, also presented a talk entitled "The Great Act, the Great Pact, and the Great Fact for a Teenager's Young Heart."

Club-sponsored programs, after-school sports events, and social activities, including a pizza party, have encouraged many students to "know Christ and to make Him known"—the goal of Teen-Tyme.

Southern Competition Attracts Aquanauts

Escaping from the cold and snow of late January, five girls and one boy representing the Swim Club traveled to Atlanta, Georgia for the Southeastern Interscholastic Swim Meet. Capturing the Girls trophy by beating squads of twelve and fifteen, the W-L five totaled forty-nine points, nine more than their nearest competitor.

Having a co-ed membership of thirty-five, the club practiced on Thursday nights at the Northern Virginia Aquatic Club for its meets.

Bi-Linguals Provide 'Back Home' Feeling

In addition to helping new students to feel at home through tours of the building and open houses, Welcome Club members who spoke a language other than English served as school guides for foreign visitors. Members also ushered at the candlelight concert and aided the Hostess of the Welcome Wagon.

"Don't forget it," says president Peggy Seeley, selecting a date for exchange student Shala Torabi to address the Welcome Club.

Lively Lasses Spark Student Spirit

Paced by five returnees, the cheerleaders beamed spirit and enthusiasm throughout the athletic year. Not only were they active at football, basketball, and crew contests, but also were instrumental in pep rallies and the George Washington bonfire. Perhaps their greatest asset was not vocal ability, but the ingenuity and artistic talents manifested in their publicity efforts. Cheerleader-contrived posters and banners ran rampant through the halls.

With cheerleader activities encompassing three athletic seasons, it was not uncommon to observe them practicing after school. Supplying leadership and guidance were sponsors Miss Jo Ann Williams, Miss Martha Harrill, varsity captain Pat Bowman, and jayvee captain Mary Wright.

Grid Squad Snatches Second State Title

The 1960 edition of the gridiron Generals grabbed the state football championship on November 24, by hammering the George Washington Presidents 40-0. This contest represented the pinnacle of success reached by head coach John Youngblood in his two-year coaching tenure.

A 13-0 shutout of Annandale, shattering a 21 game Atom winning streak, vaulted the Generals into first place; they never relinquished it.

In capturing the second state title earned by Northern Virginia teams, a lone setback was suffered.

Extreme Depth Characterizes Roster

At the beginning of the season, coach John Youngblood retooled his offense by installing the winged-T formation. Designed to open up the opposition, the system was first used in the opening game, a 14-2 victory over the Fairfax Rebels. Its first outstanding performance, however, was in the Osbourn contest; the surprised Yellow Jackets were victimized for 353 total yards.

As the season progressed, halfbacks Dave Culler, and Jim Williams gained prominence as a potent running duo. Culler paced the team's scorers with 60 points. Terry Brown's aerial bombs to ends Earl Pegram, and Steve Warren constituted a fearsome overhead weapon. The interior line, pivoted by Jim Reilly, provided capable pass protection and monumental offensive blocking.

Defensive Unit Holds Enemy to 69 Points

Liberalized substitution rules enabled defensive coach Roger Coggins and line mentor Clarence Drayer to perfect a team almost solely of defensive specialists. The 69 points allowed by this "exacting eleven" was the lowest total surrendered since 1956.

Savage line play headed by Lee Robertson, Bill Chauncey, Don Shultis, Dan Zahn, and Arch Woody, plus a secondary spearheaded by Northern Virginia's premier pass pilferer, Hap Hadd, Artie Peck, and Scott Frazier gave the Generals an "untouchable" defense. Shutouts of Osbourn, Lee, D. J. O'Connell, and powerful Annandale proved this.

Sophomore Gridders Post Winning Record

Duplicating last year's record, the all sophomore football team prepared players for future varsity positions. Jayvee skippers Boyd Webb and Sal DeGiorgi molded a squad from graduates of neighboring junior high teams to compile a 4-3-1 record. Relying on speed and courage as opposed to brawn, the junior Generals defeated all Northern Virginia competition with the exception of perennial rival Wakefield whom they tied. Throughout the season, the jayvee sported a very effective offense as they scored in every game. As is traditional, with their own season completed, a number of junior varsity players were promoted to the varsity for the George Washington game, Thanksgiving Day.

Road Runners Race to Third in State

Coach Al Wells, in his initial season at the harrier helm, steered his veteran squad through a successful season climaxed by a third place showing in the state meet at William and Mary.

Spearheaded by junior Duncan Higgins, who snared seventh place at William and Mary, and senior Bob Hundley, who finished ninth; the harriers ended the campaign with a performance typical of the season-long activities. The lone loss, suffered by the road runners in dual meet competition, came at the hands of the Hammond Admirals.

Sharpshooters Notch Unvanquished Season

Sweeping through eleven matches, the rifle team rang up its second unbeaten season in three years.

Colonel Kenneth Thiebaud's riflemen, led by captain Tom Verzi, inaugurated the campaign by routing the Flint Hill private school. This triumph was a preview of the season's coming attractions.

Nearby Wakefield and D. J. O'Connell also fell to the shooters, but their heyday was a 1104-1098 lacing of the University of Maryland freshmen team.

Quincy Street Five

Losing only five of twenty-three clashes, the varsity basketball team placed second in Northern Virginia; only state titlist Wakefield topped them.

The Generals embarked upon their seasonal slate with three victories, but their applecart was upset on foreign courts. J.E.B. Stuart handed the cagers their initial road setback 46-42. Three additional defeats marred the league record. Wakefield trimmed the hoopsters 44-35 at Wakefield, and 48-42 in the Campbell Gymnasium.

Mount Vernon fell twice to the netmen, 45-38 and 43-41 in the semi-finals of the Northern Virginia Tournament; Major star Marty Lentz, an all-state selection, managed but 16 and 17 points in these contests, less than half his normal average.

Primarily defensive-minded, the team utilized a slow offense, designed to take the percentage shot, spiced with an occasional fast break.

Mr. Levin's starting quintet featured the back-board play of 6'5" Ed Hummer and 6'4" Bob Sutton, arcing sets of co-captain Wayne Burroughs and Ray Hodgdon, and the slashing drives of co-captain and defensive artist Pete Peterson.

Amid a maze of Generals and Warriors, Bob Sutton lofts a shot goalward in the Tournament finals.

Track Team Defends Regional Indoor Title

In his maiden season, Coach Peter Olexy guided a senior-laden squad through a season marked by steady improvement. In their initial encounters, the team downed Episcopal by a narrow margin and then went on to place fourth in the Evening Star Games at the D.C. Armory.

Traveling to the Virginia Military Institute in Lexington, the cindermen placed second in the state meet, being edged out by a powerful Newport News squad. The team finished the season by capturing their second straight Northern Virginia title after a close battle with nine other contingents.

Matmen Nab Northern Virginia Crown

Under the direction of head coach Sherman Vandevender, the 1961 grapplers compiled a 4-3-1 mark in dual-match competition.

An oft-disturbed schedule characterized the team, for poor weather cancelled matches with Tenaflly, New Jersey, William Fleming of Roanoke, and Princess Anne. Seasonal highlights encompass a pair of come-from-behind victories, 26-19 against Fairfax and 25-21 over archrival Wakefield, both decided by Brian O'Donnell. Thumping down-state Blacksburg, tripping area opponent Landon, and capturing the Northern Virginia Tournament at Wakefield spiced the schedule, while a fourth-place finish in the state meet enhanced the seasonal record.

Outstanding individual logs were recorded by co-captains Steve Hobbs and Jim Fisher, 128-pounder Bill Via, 167-pounder Bob Shultis, and heavyweight Brian O'Donnell. Hobbs, 97-pound state champ, as a sophomore, defeated his 112-pound counterparts to win a second crown. Fisher, lauded as a potential titlest, was hampered by balky ankle and finished second in his weight classification.

At the conclusion of the campaign, Mr. Vandevender presented letters to squad members at the athletic awards assembly.

Little Grapplers Trim Three Varsities

Preparing for a future match, grapplers Bill Petruzal and Phil Arberg hold a practice bout in the gym.

Winning three of their last four matches, the junior varsity wrestling team rewarded coach Guy Cavallo with five victories in nine outings. The junior grapplers posted a three and two seasonal record against varsity adversaries.

Casting an eye toward vacant varsity berths, sophomores Jeff Lipsey and John Farley, competing at 105 and 154 respectively, compiled outstanding individual marks. Lipsey swept all six of his matches, while Farley pinned six of seven opponents.

Returning Lettermen Boost Golfing Stock

After a three-year reign as Northern Virginia golf champs, the Generals took a back seat last season to the Raiders of J.E.B. Stuart by finishing in the runner-up slot. Traveling to Virginia Beach, the linksmen placed sixteenth in the state meet.

'60 Varsity Sluggers Set Formidable Goals

Winning sixteen out of nineteen diamond encounters, the 1960 varsity culminated the season by collar- ing the Northern Virginia Championship. Leading off the slate, the Generals pounded out a 11-2 rout against visiting Osbourn. The following day the squad poured across 20 runs and held the Stuart Raiders to four tallies.

Visiting Cleveland Heights found their hosts equal in a 5-5 draw. A first setback came at the hands of the Annandale Atoms with a 7-6 upset, and on May 10 the Hammond squad blanked the Generals in a two-hitter. Victories against Mt. Vernon and Madison set the stage for the 6-1 Wakefield defeat that notched the Northern Virginia title.

Batters Hold Key to Diamond Riddle

In its effort to equal last season's accomplishments, the varsity baseball team split its first four encounters with area opponents.

Inconsistency plagued the squad in its first four meetings with diamond foes. Twirlers Clay Bittinger and Dave Hammond combined to whitewash Falls Church 4-0 in the inaugural contest. An eleven run fifth inning characterized the team's fortunes in their next encounter, a 13-6 shellacking of Stuart. Dropping a 5-4 heartbreaker to Mt. Vernon, and committing five errors to give St. John's an 8-4 victory completed the incongruous picture.

Following a circuit clout, Ben Fisher accepts the customary handshake from teammate Wayne Mitchell.

Jayvee Team Overcome Initial Defeat

In his initial season, Coach Sal DeGiorgi's junior varsity team finished second on the 1960 ladder.

Paced by flamethrower Artie Peck and keystoneer Richie Sharff, the junior Generals captured twelve of fifteen decisions. Splitting a pair of contests with Wakefield, the team also fell to the Groveton Tigers, jayvee champs for the past two years.

The 1961 squad experienced early season difficulties. After being stung 14-3 by the infant Yorktown varsity, the jayvee contingent retaliated with a loosely played 9-8 victory over Annandale.

General Thinclads Top Groveton, G. W.

Led by new Coach Peter Olexy and the nucleus of the indoor track squad, the outdoor track team set their sights upon the state Championship won last year by Newport News.

In the cinder inaugural, the thinclads dumped Groveton  $93\frac{1}{2}$ - $18\frac{1}{2}$ . In successive meets, the cinder-men humbled George Washington 87-25, and the Mt. Vernon Majors  $95\frac{1}{2}$ - $17\frac{1}{2}$ . Depth is the team's greatest asset. Co-captains Earl Pegram and Russell Peterson head a covey of experienced blue-clad runners.

Slipping the baton to Bob Hundley, Russ Nalley concludes his leg of the mile relay in the 87-25 dual-meet rout of G.W.

Straining with all of his might, shot putter Don Sikes hurls the steel ball skyward in the meet with Episcopal.

In exactly the opposite manner, the 1961 squad captured their first two decisions. Smashing Yorktown 7-2 in their initial encounter, the netmen followed with a 8-1 rout of D. J. O'Connell.

Feminine cries of "Get that ball—get the ball" drifting from the gym on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons informed the passerby of the advent of the basketball season of Girls' Athletic Association sponsored intramural games.

Volleyball, trampoline, ping pong, shuffleboard, and softball were only a few of the other sports available to the four hundred athletically-inclined girls who participated in the intramural programs this year. New members and those who had earned school letters or other awards were presented with their emblems at the Awards Assembly in the spring.

Honorary Titles Award Star Athletes

With a sports season studded with victories, it is only natural that many individuals be recognized with special awards. The titles that these individuals received are but a bare indication of the success of the teams on which they played and the outstanding teammates who supported them.

Steve Hobbs — Wrestling, 112 pounds — Senior; State Champion, Northern Virginia Champion

Jim Fisher — Wrestling, 138 pounds — Senior; Northern Virginia Champion

Bill Via — Wrestling, 130 pounds — Senior; Northern Virginia Champion

Now is the time to choose a star, to set a course
For the future waits for no man
And the opportunities it holds are boundless

Dixon Sponsors First-Year Activities

Mrs. Dixon, Sponsor.

"Stimulating leadership qualities in homeroom presidents; that is our goal!" declared class president Ed Hummer. Every second and fourth Thursday afternoon, class officials held meetings to discuss how to achieve those qualities needed by homeroom officers for more effective leadership.

Preparations for Thanksgiving Day festivities included building a class float which was displayed at the pep rally and bonfire preceding the George Washington vs. Washington-Lee football game.

Traditions continued when the underclassmen challenged the teachers to play in the annual sophomore-faculty game, and when the selection of a speaker for the special Easter Assembly was delegated to the entire sophomore class.

Class Officers, Guidance Officials

Officers of the class of '62 worked with the guidance department to institute a new trend in assemblies. Through this program juniors learned for the first time about the PSAT test, early application to colleges, and job placement.

Capturing third place at the G. W. bonfire, the junior float was the only class entry to win a prize. With the approach of Christmas, underclassmen aided with the seasonal assembly by securing a minister, and conducting the service.

Rivalry between classes was renewed as the challengers took complete charge of planning the Junior-Senior game activities.

Class of '61 Led by Brown, Matts,

Terry Brown, President.

In September, a committee of seniors met and proposed a list of privileges for the class of 1961, pending approval of the administration. Among those approved were automatic exemption from final examinations for those holding straight A averages and exemption, with teacher approval, for those with A and B averages. Also included were early dismissal from assemblies and the use of the Little Theater and Senior Court during lunch.

In the fall and early winter many seniors met

A year is done — the knowledge we have obtained, the achievements we have gained at Washington-Lee are monuments that stand as guideposts to our future.

Our Horizon is the Nation's Capital
It lies across the river
It is an Horizon of culture and opportunity
An unlimited Horizon of the future
